Purchasing jewelry for a loved one can be a very challenging experience, especially if purchased during a gifting time such as Valentine's Day where expectations are higher for couples than any other time of the year. The best kept secret is to purchase not the biggest rock, but what symbolizes the recipient's virtues and passions. Do not make the mistake of buying a gift that does not have a meaningful message behind it.

Focus on items that will bring memories, reflect your thoughtfulness and consideration, and give the person the chance to wear them proudly and closely to their heart. This is the ultimate guide to truly capture someone's heart and show them how much you value who they are, what they stand for, and what they love.

Alex and Ani "Providence" collection: The latest inspirational line in the A&A portfolio can bring out the best in everyone. Filled with symbols that represent everything from illumination, wisdom and beauty, to abundance and positivity, I can assure you that you will find yourself falling in love. The dainty necklaces can be layered on their own or with other necklaces, and the bracelets with the signature charm bangles. $68-78 AlexandAni.com

Origami Owl living lockets: Grab a crystal locket and fill it up with everything that represents what you love, what you enjoy doing, or what means something to you. Decorated with Swarovski crystals, the charms come in an array of symbols that make it a fun experience to personalize your jewelry. Choose from fashion, letters and travel to sports, careers and family. $5-40 OrigamiOwl.com
